

Specific elements

➤ RADAR items	Pointers
1 ...Was the patient drowsy?	Did he/she have a tendency to fall asleep? Did he/she have difficulty staying awake?
2 ... Did the patient have difficulty following your instructions?	Did he/she take the medication when you gave it to him/her? Did he/she hold out his/her hand? Did he/she bring the medication up to his/her mouth? Did he/she take the glass of water (or drink it) when you offered it to him/her? Did his/her gaze follow your movements or gestures when you spoke to him (visual contact)?
3 ... Were the patient's movements slowed down?	Did he/she move slowly? Was the patient slow when he/she sat, walked and took his/her medication?
	If you happened to observe one of those behaviours since the distribution of the medication, check “yes” . In case of doubt, also check “yes” .

The authors cannot be held accountable for any damages whatsoever, direct or indirect, resulting from the use of RADAR. Using RADAR may not be suitable for some patients and under no circumstances can it replace the clinical judgement of a healthcare professional.

To learn more about RADAR, please visit the website www.fsi.ulaval.ca/radar